Константин Степанович СОРОКИН родился в 1909 г. в украинском селе Левада на Подольщине. В 1934 г. он окончил Московскую консерваторию по классу фортепиано К. Н. Игумнова; несколько позже (в 1939—1945 гг.) прошел у него же курс аспирантуры. После окончания консерватории К. С. Сорокин много концертировал, работал как педагог. В это же время им была написана музыка к ряду театральных постановок («Отелло» Шекспира, «Маскарад» Лермонтова и др.). В 1944 г. Сорокин вновь стал студентом консерватории на этот раз уже по классу композиции (сначала у Б. Н. Лятошинского, позже — у А. Н. Александрова, под руководством которого в 1947 г. он завершил свое композиторское образование). С 1944 года Сорокин работает редактором Государственного музыкального издательства (ныне издательство «Музыка»).

Сочинения Сорокина привлекают своим жанровым разнообразием, тонкой лиричностью (не чуждой драматических подъемов), изяществом и пластичностью формы. Большое внимание к музыкальной культуре народов различных стран мира естественно и органично сочетается в его творчестве с глубоким интересом к актуальным темам современности.

Из сочинений Сорокина необходимо упомянуть ораторию «Россия» для солистов, хора и оркестра на текст А. Прокофьева (1966), хореографическую сказку «Гадкий утенок» (в двух частях, по Андерсену, 1962) для симфонического оркестра; Пассакалию и фугу (1947), три миниатюры (1955) и «Торжественную увертюру» для симфонического оркестра, посвященную памяти В. И. Ленина (1964), концерт для фортепиано с оркестром (1965); сонату для скрипки и фортепиано (1964); четыре сонаты для фортепиано (1950—1957), пять концертных сонатин, 24 прелюдии, десять концертных этюдов и другие произведения для фортепиано (в том числе «Два симфонических танца», «Танец и пляска», четыре танца для двух фортепиано, три альбома педагогических пьес для юношества); песни и романсы, среди них — четыре вокальных цикла: «Из русской поэзии» на стихи Пушкина и Баратынского, циклы на стихи Лермонтова, Шелли и Тютчева, а также свыше 50 обработок песен для голоса и фортепиано (русских, украинских, венгерских, румынских, японских и др.).

Публикуемая симфоническая поэма «Вальс» является вполне законченной по форме и самостоятельной частью хореографической сказки «Гадкий утенок». Эта сцена рисует встречу главного «героя» маленького беззащитного птенца — с чванливыми и самодовольными обитателями птичьего двора; встреча кончается изгнанием несчастного утенка. Композитор — вслед за Андерсеном — трактует это столкновение как конфликт светлого начала с тупой обывательской стихией. Соответственно этому музыка Поэмы насыщена контрастами и соединяет в себе глубокий драматизм и трогательность (например, первая тема d-moll — лейтмотив гадкого утенка), с нарочито грубоватой внешней эффектностью (например, явно «филистерское» начало второй темы A-dur). Структура произведения органично сочетает в себе традиционную трехчастность с чертами динамичной сонатной формы. Оркестровая ткань Поэмы отличается красочностью и насыщенностью звучания.

Р. Берберов

Soviet composer KONSTANTIN SOROKIN was born in the village of Levada, the Ukraine, in 1909. In 1934 he graduated from Nikolai Igumnov's class of piano at the Moscow Conservatoire; in 1939—45 he took a post-graduate course under the direction of Professor Igumnov. Upon graduation from the Conservatoire Sorokin made many concert appearances and taught, at the same time composing incidental music to plays (including Shakespeare's "Othello", Lermontov's "Masquerade" and some others). In 1944 Sorokin began studying composition (first with Boris Liatoshinsky and later, with Anatoly Alexandrov, from whose class he graduated in 1947).

Since 1944 the composer has been working as editor at the State Music Publishers (today known as the MUSIC).

Sorokin's music in various forms is distinguished by lyricism, with moments of dramatic upsurge, and well-balanced and plastic form. He is interested in the musical cultures of different countries and in modern themes.

The list of Sorokin's works includes the oratorio "Russia" for soloists, chorus and orchestra to words by A. Prokofiev (1966), the choreographic tale "The Ugly Duckling" in two parts, after Andersen (1962), the Passacaglia and Fugue (1947), Three Miniatures (1955) and "Solemn Overture" dedicated to Lenin's memory (1964)—all for symphony orchestra; a piano concerto (1965), a sonata for violin and piano (1964), four piano sonatas (1950—57), five concert sonatinas, 24 preludes, ten concert studies, and other works for piano (among them "Two Symphonic Dances", "Dance and Folk Dance", four dances for two pianos, and three albums of instructive pieces); songs and romances, including four vocal cycles ("From Russian Poetry" to words by Pushkin and Baratynsky, and three cycles to words by Lermontov, by Shelley and by Tyutchev), and over 50 arrangements of Russian, Ukrainian, Hungarian, Rumanian, Japanese and other folk songs for voice and piano.

The symphonic poem "Waltz" published here is a perfectly slef-sufficient part of the "Ugly Duckling" choreographic tale. This scene depicts the encounter between the little, timid Duckling and the proud smug inhabitants of the poultry-yard, ending in the Duckling being driven out of the yard. In keeping with Andersen's idea, the composer treats this encounter as a conflict between goodness and Philistine stolidity. The music of the poem is built up on contrasts, for instance, the dramatic and touching first theme in D minor, the leading-motive of the Ugly Duckling, and the patently coarse and brazen second theme in A Major. Structurally, the ternary form is combined here with elements of the dynamic sonata-form. The orchestra is rich and colourful.
